COMMITTEE/MEMBER                     SUBJECT Donation of Papers to CIAACTION OFFICER                     

STAT

SUMMARY:

In July 1985,                      donated papers to the Central Intelligence Agency. They constituted his life's work at the Library of Congress and private research dealing with the Soviet Union. Two young women from CIA picked them up from           . At that time he requested the women to find out if the Agency could put a dollar value on his papers so that he might use this figure for income tax purposes. The women never responded. He did receive, however, a signed receipt of acceptance from CIA (Mr. K. can't read the signature). He did give me the name the phone number of one of the women.

I called                      DDI/SOVA today. She advised that at the time they picked up the material           , after having checked with OGC, they told            that it would make more sense for            to put a value on his material. (The material includes some 5,000 index cards, plus some open source material.)

I called            back and advised the same thing. He asked to think about it and would call me back in an hour--which he did. He decided to put the value at $3,000.00. (I asked him how he happened to call the legislative office. He said he thought his request should be handled by the legal department--I think the operator just gave him the wrong number.)
